General Election results in change of president and two legislator positions

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

The results of the June 2 General Election have been made available, showing that Wilfrid Cleveland will be the next Ho-Chunk Nation president, defeating challenger Robert Two Bears with a 20 percent margin.

Also, one incumbent legislator retained her position, while in two other legislator races, the challengers were successful.

For the District 1 Seat 2 legislator position, challenger Douglas Greengrass came away with the victory over incumbent Susan Waukon, 223 to 188. The votes were fairly equal in all the polling stations except Black River Falls, where Greengrass received 206 votes to Waukon's 174 votes, a difference of 32.

For the District 3 Seat 1 legislator position, challenger Kathy DeCamp took the top votes, 150 to 129, over incumbent Heather Cloud, a difference of 21 votes. The biggest difference in vote totals was in Wisconsin Rapids, where DeCamp received 61 votes to Cloud's 27 votes, a difference of 34 votes.

For the District 4 Seat 2 legislator position, incumbent Shelby Visintin received the most votes, 79 to 55, over challenger Muriel Whiteagle-Lee. The biggest vote difference was in absentee totals, where Visintin received 38 votes to Whiteagle-Lee's 9.

President-elect Cleveland believes his challenge ahead will be to combine the past with the future.

"The large task lies ahead," Cleveland said after the election. "It's important to remember what our elders did to improve our lives and to carry on our cultural traditions."

Cleveland said it will be a difficult task to lead the Nation onward with progress, but not forgetting the past.

"We have to maintain the feelings our elders had – we can't let them die out," he said. "What is important is our language. It's important to retain our fluent speakers so we can hold conversations in the Ho-Chunk language."

Yet, it is important to keep the Nation progressing into the future, he said.

"Changes need to get done," he said. "Our children live in two worlds. We are in those same situations. We need to maintain what our elders gave to us, but now we also have to move forward with developments that will afford us to maintain or improve what we have. It's a balance to do both – to keep what we had and do what we want to get done."

Incumbent District 4 Set 2 Legislator Shelby Visintin said she looks forward to serving the Nation for another term.

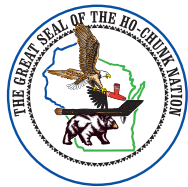

"I would just like to give a big thank you to all who voted," Visintin said. "I am very honored and excited to serve another term as Ho-Chunk Legislator for D4. I look forward to four more years of representing the Nation. Also, I can't forget my family, friends, and supporters across the Nation for their continued love, support, and words of encouragement on this journey. Let's keep moving in a positive direction for all!"

Kathy DeCamp wishes to thank her supporters and to let everyone know that she intends to work for the people in her district.

"I'm grateful for all the voters supporting me and volunteering for my campaign," DeCamp said. "I am humble and committing myself to the service of the District 3 members and the Ho-Chunk Nation."

First Nations Community Financial receives non-profit status

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

Forrest Funmaker, executive director of First Nations Community Financial, is really, really excited.

The financial institution officially received 501 (c) nonprofit status on May 5 this year.

“We’ve been trying for the nonprofit status for some time,” Funmaker said. “We applied in February 2014, so it took a little more than a year.”

They had to prove to the Internal Revenue Service that the institution is a charity and that it does devote time and money to the community.

“So now we have to gear up to the next phase and that is to go to organizations and ask if they have money to lend out. We can lend out to small business owners and entrepreneurs and work with HHODA to create Individualized Development Accounts (IDAs),” Funmaker said.

“The non-profit status helps us buy items tax-free, we receive a reduced postal rate and we are exempt from paying federal taxes,” he said.

First Nations Community Financial came into existence in 2007 with the work from Ho-Chunk Housing and Community Development (HHCDA) with financial backing from a NACA grant.

The Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America (NACA) is a non-profit, community advocacy and homeownership organization. NACA’s primary goal is to build strong, healthy neighborhoods in urban and rural areas nationwide through affordable homeownership.

First Nation Community Financial is considered a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI), in which 68 are for Native American communities. The purpose of CDFIs are to help with low to moderate income families.

“The top 10 CDFIs outperformed the top 10 banks in the country,” Funmaker said.

Receiving the nonprofit status will allow the institution into many programs it previously was not eligible for, including a variety of grants.

The nonprofit status help is twofold, he said. First, it will help with the Capitalization Plan, which helps to increase the loan fund. Secondly, it helps with the operational budget, such as salaries and supplies, Funmaker said.

First Nations will be applying to obtain a $700,000 grant, which is a large amount for such an institution.

“I’m crossing my fingers,” Funmaker said.

Besides offering loans and other monetary plans, the institution offers public educational opportunities.

“It’s an interesting process to help out tribal members and help out the community in different ways,” he said.

One of the projects was to read stories and provide piggy banks at Head Start centers.

Another activity is the annual Financial Frenzy, which teaches middle and high school students how to manage their money in a game that resembles the activities in life. This year, First Nations will combine forces with Ho-Chunk Social Services and its annual Game of Life. It will be held on June 24 at the Ho-Chunk Gaming – Nekoosa ballroom.

“We need to look at young people and make an effort to educate them on what to do with their money,” Funmaker said. “It does hit on a big issue: if they should be mandated to receive some education before receiving their trust funds.”

But the concept of helping people and educating them to better manage their money is what First Nations is all about.

“It’s definitely part of the whole strategic plan,” Funmaker said. “It’s closer to the foundation of helping people and getting out into the community.”

Ho Chunk woman among graduates of the College of Menominee Nation

Submitted by College of Menominee Nation

Commencement ceremonies on Saturday, May 30, represented a special milestone for the College of Menominee Nation. The 111 students eligible for graduation from CMN's Keshena and Green Bay campuses brought the College's total number of alumni above the 1,000 mark. Candidates received Bachelor's and Associate degrees, technical diplomas, and the certificate of mastery in 15 programs of study Desma M. Wayka of the Ho Chunk tribe was among the 56 graduates who are members or descendants of American Indian tribes. The other 10 tribes having graduates this year are Bad River Chippewa, Brotherton, Cherokee, Crow, Lac Courtes Oreille Ojibway, Menominee, Mohican, Oneida, Potawatomi and Stockbridge-Munsee tribes. Ms. Wayka earned her technical diploma in the College's Business and Office Technician program. She makes her home in Neopit.

Joining CMN President Verna Fowler in the program were Dr. Alton (Sonny) Smart as guest speaker; Trenton Miller, Sr., who spoke on behalf of the graduating class, and Justin Gauthier, a 2011 CMN graduate who welcomed the new graduates to the ranks of alumni.

Dr. Smart, a member of the Bad River Band, serves on the Social Work faculty at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and was one of the first four instructors at CMN when it opened in January 1993. Miller, a Shawano resident, received his CMN degree in Natural Resources. He is a son of the late Glen Miller, Menominee leader during whose tenure the idea of the tribal college was conceived. After earning his Associate Degree at CMN, Gauthier enrolled at UW-Madison and has recently completed his baccalaureate there in English.

A special President's Award was given during ceremonies to Loretta Webster of the Oneida Tribe. Webster was recognized for her aid in the 1992-93 academic year in the establishment of the College of Menominee Nation while she served as Associate Vice Chancellor for Cultural Diversity at UW-Stevens Point. President Fowler cited Webster for facilitating discussions with the Stevens Point Chancellor that led to a credit-transfer agreement as CMN began offering classes. Webster, who is a UW Law School graduate, subsequently served as Land Management Attorney and in other capacities for the Oneida Tribe. More recently, she has practiced and fostered traditional arts. The award commended her work on behalf of American Indian students and communities.

Professor Ruth (Cyndi) Pyatskowit of CMN's teacher education program received the 2015 American Indian College Fund Teacher of the Year Award. Pyatskowit, who lives in Shawano, is project director and principle investigator on several education and literacy grants at the College focused on young children. Her more than 30 years of professional experience includes substantial work with Head Start and other early childhood initiatives.

The College, which opened for students in 1993, is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission. It is one of only three Land Grant institutions in Wisconsin and one of 36 recognized tribal colleges in North America. It enrolls American Indian and non-Indian students on its Keshena and Green Bay campuses.

MESSAGE FROM Social Services, Community Supportive Services, Family Service Program

I, Wilfrid Cleveland, as Family Service Program Manager, apologize for any inconvenience this may cause any Families or Individuals in their summer planning, however due to circumstances in working with other entities to make an Event happen may call for some changes just when we thought we had all the planning set. That is what has happened with our Basketball Camp scheduling. We must take one of the Camps out of our schedule and still make an attempt at having have as many of our basketball players participate as possible. With the situation the way it is, we are doing what we can to adapt and make the best out of circumstances that arise for our Youths benefit. All Communities which do not have a Basketball Camp within close proximity are welcome to attend and participate in any of the Camps scheduled below.

With that being said this is the updated schedule for our Basketball Camps:

June 20-21, 2015-House of Wellness, Wisconsin Dells

July 25-26, 2015-Wittenberg Birnamwood H.S., Wittenberg

August 15-16, 2015-Black River Falls Sr. High, Black River Falls

As a part of this apology, I am sorry that we couldn't have Camps in more locations than what we have listed. This is the first year we are working with Rise Up, a group affiliated with Milwaukee Bucks. If this is a long lasting relationship plans could only get better as time goes on.

Ho-Chunk pursue language initiative

Cassandra Colson, Jackson County Chronicle, reprinted with permission

The Ho-Chunk Nation is moving forward with an educational collaboration to help preserve its native language.

The Nation and UW-Marshfield/Wood County last week celebrated a partnership that will provide college-level education and training to apprentices who will be eyed to teach the language to a variety of age groups and design curriculum.

The partnership, described as a milestone in the Nation’s preservation efforts, comes as the tribe faces a sharp decline in those fluent in the language. At most, only 100 individuals are proficient Ho-Chunk speakers – a number that has decreased over the last four years.

“I’m glad this is happening because this is truly a sizeable event – as historic as it is essential,” said Ho-Chunk Nation President Jon Greendeer at the Friday celebration. “This begins something that I see growing nothing but positively.

The Nation and college for at least two years have explored a program to assist with training educators to pass the Ho-Chunk language to students and future generations. The groups are now moving ahead with the new Ho-Chunk Educators’ Certification Program, a one-year program offered by the college to train Ho-Chunk language apprentices.

“It’s been a really positive experience,” Ho-Chunk Nation Higher Education Division Manager Marcus Lewis said of working on the partnership with the university. “It was a lot of effort – a lot of good that came to be.”

The partnership is one of many ways the Nation has been working to pass along its language to future generations. The tribe also has worked with area school districts, including Black River Falls, to offer high school-level language courses for native and non-native students.

UW-Marshfield/Wood County officials view the newest effort as a necessary collaboration for a college whose location is situated in an area of high Ho-Chunk population.

“I think this is only a beginning of a relationship ... with the Ho-Chunk Nation,” said Patricia Stuhr, dean and CEO of UW-Marshfield/Wood County.

Cathy Sandeen, chancellor of UW Colleges, said the partnership is an embodiment of the Wisconsin Idea – that education from the University of Wisconsin System has wide-ranging impacts across the state and beyond. The college is pleased to play a part in Ho-Chunk language preservation, she said.

“I feel so great we can play a part in that,” she said.

Ho-Chunk officials see the partnership as vital as they work to incorporate the language into curriculum and efforts at all educational levels, including day care and youth centers.

“I think this is a great opportunity for the Nation – (the) Nation as a whole,” said Samson Falcon, program manager of the language apprentice program. “I’m glad we got to this point here.”

Carlyle Greendeer, program manager of the Hoocak Academy, agreed.

“For a long time, our older generation has been holding on to the language for us,” he said. “It is our duty ... to continue work that our elders held for us.

“(The partnership) is going to bring tribal members that much closer to their dream of learning the language.”

Friday’s event also included songs from a drum

The Ho-Chunk Nation honored Patricia Stuhr of UW-Marshfield/Wood County, center, during an event to mark an historic partnership Friday. Marcus Lewis, right, Adrienne Thunder and others praised Stuhr’s efforts to collaborate with the Nation.

group, an opening prayer from language instructor Gordon Thunder and remarks from Ho-Chunk Nation Executive Director of Education Adrienne Thunder. The Nation honored Stuhr in a special presentation for her work with the tribe on the initiative.

Notice to Respondent
a. You have been named in a petition alleging paternity. A judgment of paternity would legally designate the child as your child, grant rights to you, create the right of inheritance for the child, obligate you to pay child support and make failure to pay child support punishable as contempt.

The court will order a genetic test on request from you, a designated tribal agency, or any other party to the case. Any person who refuses to take a court ordered genetic test may be punished for contempt.
c. The petitioner has the burden of proving by clear and convincing evidence that you are the father. If a genetic test shows that you are not excluded as the father and that the statistical probability of you being the father is ninety-nine percent (99.0%) or higher, you are presumed to be the father.
d. The following defenses are available to you:
i. That you were sterile or impotent at the time of conception;
ii. That you did not have sexual intercourse with the mother of the child during the conception period; or
iii. That another man did have sexual intercourse with the mother of the child during the conception time period.
e. If you fail to appear at any stage of the proceeding, including a scheduled genetic test, the Court may find you in contempt.

Thank you from Ho-Chunk Nation President-elect Wilfrid Cleveland

Hiha, wasaniwira, hizakisana wainiginupwi.

The good thoughts each of you had for the future of Ho-Chunk People and the confidence of your vote so I am a major part of it, as President, is sincerely appreciated.

There are so many changes that affect Ho-Chunk Nation and our Elders realized the many changes our future would face. So, with the help of the people, they organized Ho-Chunk into a government. Thus, began ways to improve Housing, Health, Education and Employment. All this was done with Wois'ak (respect), Nachokikija (sincere concern for one another), Wogixate (love one another) and Aikirute (helping one another).

The importance of our Ways has always been an important part in our Government. I believe the philosophy of our Elders will work as we look ahead for our Future Generations so my platform was as such. Not to take who we are as a People for granted but to uphold this philosophy as important and while adapting modern technology into our government. This is how our Elders may have thought, so I attempted to express this as an established direction that worked for our Elders and will carry us into the future.

I am expressing my Gratitude for each of you who voted for me to make the best Government possible for ourselves, our children, our grandchildren and our elders with an emphasis on our Ho-Chunk Way of Life.

Thank you so much for the votes, I am very humbled and honored, Pixgihinagigiwi.

Stand Rock Indian Ceremonial gets reboot with Wasira Show

Ken Luchterhand
Staff Writer

Years ago, the Stand Rock Indian Ceremonial drew tourists to Wisconsin Dells from hundreds of miles around.

But then, one day all that stopped. That ending has created a void in the need for visitors to connect with Ho-Chunk culture.

“There is a pent-up demand for Native American culture and traditions that hasn’t been met by any of the tribes in the state,” said Ho-Chunk Gaming – Wisconsin Dells Executive Manager James Webster. “Wisconsin Dells is unique in the state in that it has four to five million tourists coming to visit every year, many of them who remember the Ho-Chunk presence in the Dells.”

To bring back that event from the past, in an attempt to fill that need, an event has been created that is called the “Wasira Show,” a cultural dance that is held from 6 to 7 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays in the Ho-Chunk Gaming – Wisconsin Dells Hotel atrium.

It’s under the umbrella of what Webster and his staff have developed as a new approach to the tourist concept, which has been termed the “Ho-Chunk Experience.”

It was conceived by the Customer Service Department, which emphasizes the best of Ho-Chunk standards, that means they want guests to be greeted, fed and housed with Ho-Chunk hospitality, bringing in Ho-Chunk culture, Webster said.

“We wanted to bring back one of the cultural events and make it available so that the elders could transfer the culture to the young, plus make it available to visitors,” Webster said.

The Wasira Show features drummers, singers and dancers who entertain the crowd through the beauty and pageantry of traditional and modern regalia, Webster said. At the show, guests will learn about the Ho-Chunk people’s culture and heritage, through their deep respect for Mother Earth around them and how this is reflected in their songs and dances.

“The purpose is to educate and to inform the public of the Ho-Chunk culture,” said

Elliott Funmaker Sr, show coordinator and master of ceremonies.

“I try to stay with the same program lineup,” Funmaker said. But the singers and dancers do vary since some people are not available for all performances. He has a list of 19 dancers, both adult and youth, male and female.

The current Wasira Show in the hotel atrium is only meant to be temporary. It serves a good purpose at this point, allowing visitors of all ages, even families, to watch the performances, but the intentions are to refine the showings and to perhaps move it to a location closer to high traffic tourist activities in Wisconsin Dells.

“Elliott (Funmaker) does a great job of describing the regalia and explaining the cultural history,” Webster said. “It’s held in the atrium so that families can attend the event. This is the first year of bringing this back, so we need to work through the problems, work out the bugs and tweak it a bit.”

To promote the show, there

Male Head Dancer Kelly Logan leads the procession of dancers during the Snake Dance.

Show Coordinator and Master of Ceremonies Elliott Funmaker begins the program with a song featuring a hand drum that he made.

The young ladies show the intricate designs of their regalia to the audience.

The singers, led by Gabriel Funmaker, provided the music for the Wasira Show.

is a booth downtown with information about the dance, plus shop owners have been informed to be able to spread the information by word-of-mouth, he said.

The dance begins with a Grand Entry, followed by a Military Song. The next song is a Ladies Applique, followed by a Men’s Traditional Dance and then a Women’s Jingle. Grass Dancers then take center stage, followed by the Fancy Dance and then the ever-winding Snake Dance. The event concludes with a Two-Step Show where the dancers invite partners from the audience.
